THE grave of Edgar Allan Poe at es has been arouned with a monument. The remains of the gifted but unfortunate poet were disinterred for reburial last week. The coffin was found five feet below the surface of the ground, in a fair state of preservation. The lid being removed, the skeleton was exposed to view, and appeared in almost perfect condition, except the skull, which was considerably decomposed. Several of the upper teeth had fallen out and lay in the cavity; the teeth in the lower jaw were all sound. A few locks of hair still one of the attacking party.

THE New York Evening Post states that forty-five years ago Mr. James Taylor, now an old farmer living in Washington county, N. Y., bought, among other things with which he began to keep house, an eight-day wooden clock of the pattern of that period. It has faithfully performed its duty as a time-keeper ever since, and as he says, apart, and has needed no repairs whatever during this time, except on two or three occasions, when he himself has

Add to this 21 per cent. on the gross amount of mortgages, for ie sum is $168,000,000-or $68,-000,000 more than the annual interest on whether these estimates are correct or not; the figures are appalling enough to make us wish they are exaggerated; but if they may be taken as approximately the New Yorkers have to make a living and pay $168,000,000 in interest and taxes every year besides. For a population of 1,000,000 this is not so difficult when trade is prosperous and profits are good; but there have been no years past, and the great incomes that were once blazoned forth to the world with so many ciphers have shrunk to to pay the interest on its mortgages must come out of the city's trade and industry; and this, it is argued, makes the cost of doing business in New York so great that trade must turn away from them_indeed, that it is already turning away to seek cheaper marts.-St. Louis

WHOLE NUMBER 442,

At a meeting of the Trustees of the Peabody Educational Fund in New York, the other day, the report of Dr. Sears, the general agent, was read. The report states that the public schools are constantly improving in character and in-creasing in number. North Carolina has not yet made equal progress. The Pea-body schools of the State are numerous. They receive too little support from the State, and depend too much on contributions from others. The Superintendent of Public Schools is now, as our agent, visiting the people and setting the subject in its proper light before them. Of South Carolina but little can be said. Until recently few applications for assistance have been made from that be said. Until recently few applications for assistance have been made from that State. The people of Georgia are in a condition not unlike that of North Carolina in regard to schools. Florida, Arkansas, and Texas are at the present time, perhaps, behind the other Southern States in support of schools. From present indications however a rest fe vorable report may be expected next year. Over 100 counties of Texas have been visited by the agent, and about now more popular than ever before. The Superintendent of Public Schools in Superintendent of Public Schools in Mississippi says that public sentiment is rapidly being developed in favor of free public schools, and that taxes for their support are promptly paid. The in-crease in attendance has been more than did not hold out sufficiently last year to year. The contributions of the Trustees for the year ending July, 1875, are as follows: Virginia, $23,750; North Caro-

The Washington correspondent of the Chicago Times says: "A delegation of Pueblo Indians, composed of three members of the tribe, arrived in this city today. They came on alone, on a trip of both business and pleasure. They had only enough money to bring them here, and made application at once to the In-dian Commissioner for some supplies. He has quartered them at one of the In dian hotels, and will probably furnish them transportation on their return. They had a letter addressed to the Com-Agent Thomas, dated Santa Fe, April 25, 1875, introducing them and saying they to see the President, the Commis of Indian Affairs, the Secretary of the Interior, and others. The letter says: 'They make the trip with a view to companion piece to this, entitled, spectfully recommend them to your kind consideration.' They also had a letter addressed to the President from the representative men of their tribe, praying that the Great Father would pre-Mexicans from raiding on them, and dis-Indians are among the few survivors of reply to questions by the Commissioner. they said their fare to Washington cos

A letter from Abo, Russia, to the Milwaukee Wisconsin, says: "But particu-larly must the traveler go down into a vault below the floor of the church and merons dead of a certain ducal family, whose name I do not remember. "The lid of one of these coffins was raised, showing what was claimed to be the body of a young lady which had been lying in that vault for two hundred years. Hair was still observable upon the head. I laid my hand on the body and it was impressible as if composed of rubber. It is claimed that, by reason of the pecudition of preservation is attained.

"The books in the pews of the church at Abo looked as if they might have been thumbed and used by the poor girl whose body I touched in the crypt

A strange story, well authenticated, comes to us concerning the late Exposi-tion. It is all about the famous Clay tion. It is all about the famous Clay county trotter, White Stockings, which got away with Pilot Temple and the $1,000 prize last Thursday, and the big prize last Saturday. Many wondered why it was that almost all the population of Clay county turned out en masse which came upon the grounds without even a pedigree or history. It is now "White Stockings" is the property of the James brothers, and that both Jesse Jay Cooke, McCulloch & Co., of Lonand Frank were present during the two great races run by their favorite nag.

That the James boys were here is now were, at the time of the bankruptcy of asserted positively by a number of their old comrades, with whom they spent one or two evenings during the last week. It is also stated and not denied that White Stockings is owned by these two bold ontlaws. - Kansas City News.
